Description

Located within a cul-de-sac in Ascot Place, this homesite limits pass-through traffic while offering a setting that feels more open from the moment you arrive. It's a lot that invites creativity; design a home that makes an impression from the street or centers around a backyard built for gathering and everyday living. The layout gives you flexibility to define how the home takes shape, from the driveway approach to outdoor living spaces, without being confined to a standard footprint. Whether it's a bold entry, extended driveway, or a backyard that becomes the focal point, the property supports it. Just minutes from major routes into downtown Columbia, the location keeps you connected while still feeling set apart once you're home. Opportunities like this, where setting and flexibility align, are becoming harder to find. Disclaimer: CMLS has not reviewed and, therefore, does not endorse vendors who may appear in listings.
