Description

A rare opportunity to own a true piece of Upstate history, 108 Main Street in West Pelzer is a beautifully distinctive circa-1917 home situated on approximately 2.24 acres beneath mature pecan trees. A wide staircase and gracious wraparound porch set the tone for the Southern charm found throughout this 3-bedroom, 2-bath home offering approximately 2,200 square feet. Inside, soaring ceilings, a welcoming foyer, generous rooms, original coal-burning fireplaces and portions of the original flooring preserve the character of the former Century Farm homeplace while creating warm, inviting spaces for everyday living and entertaining. The property becomes even more special with a separate guest house—originally used for canning produce from the farm and now thoughtfully equipped with a full kitchen, full bath and laundry. Ideal for extended family, guests, a home office, studio, or potential rental space, it adds exceptional flexibility to the property. With more than two acres to enjoy, established trees, historic details and multiple living possibilities, 108 Main Street offers the kind of character, space and story that simply cannot be recreated.
